Dear Lindsay:

I am heartbroken and deeply sad with regard to your continued emotional distress about delivery of your son Cole.

I am truly sorry that your labor and delivery did not turn out the way you planned and expected it to be. And I thank you for your honesty in sharing your thoughts and feelings with my partners.

Though you think that our meeting "did not go well" for me, I learned from it. Thank you for reminding me that Mother's opinions and desires DO MATTER, especially when they conflict with provider's general practice and experiences. I am sorry that I was so focused on Cole's non-reassuring fetal tracing and that I disregarded your fear of C/Section and the impact that surgery could have on your life.

I wish I could re-create the past and reverse or change things that were done and words that were said, but unfortunately I can't.

I can only ask for your understanding that I have done my best to the best of knowledge and skills in my possession to give you a healthy baby under very challenging circumstances.

Once again, please accept my sincere apology for not being able to fulfill your dream of special once in a lifetime event.

Respectfully,

Dr. Natalia Rezvina
